PM Hamdallah Condemns Ongoing Demolition of Palestinian Homes, 28 September 2016

Ramallah – Today, Prime Minister Rami Hamdallah strongly condemned the "ongoing large-scale" demolition of Palestinian homes by Israeli forces across the occupied West Bank and East Jerusalem. Prime Minister Hamdallah's remarks before the UN Summit to Address Large Movements of Refugees and Migrants, 19 September 2016

I am honored and humbled to join you today in this important Summit as the representative of the Palestinian people, a people whose majority population is comprised of refugees, constituting nearly a quarter of the world's refugee population, over 40% of the globe's long-term refugees, and the most protracted refugee crisis in contemporary history.

I carry with me the voices of our millions of refugees – over 5.3 million men, women and children registered with the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East (UNRWA) – from refugee camps dispersed in our region in Jordan, Lebanon, Syria and in Occupied Palestine, including in Occupied East Jerusalem, along with millions more from the Diaspora in the Middle East region, Latin America, Europe, North America and beyond, where many of our refugees migrated in search of more stable and prosperous lives.

UNFPA

Statement of UNFPA Executive Director, Dr. Babatunde Osotimehin, on International Day of Older Persons, 1 October 2016

Population ageing – one of the most significant trends of the 21st century – represents both a cause for celebration and a challenge. To ensure that everyone's well-being is enhanced through this demographic shift, more efforts are needed to minimize lifelong inequalities and improve the life conditions of older people.

People aged 60 and older accounted for 12.3 per cent of global population in 2015, and by 2050, that number will rise to almost 22 per cent. Most of the projected growth of the older population is expected to take place in developing countries. Asia is home to more than half of the world's 901 million older persons, with 508 million people aged 60 or over. Another 177 million older persons reside in Europe, 75 million in North America, 71 million in Latin America and the Caribbean, 64 million in Africa and 6 million in Oceania.

Consulate General of France

Excerpt of President of the French Republic's address at the General Debate of the United Nations General Assembly in New York on 20 September 2016

Ladies and Gentleman, to not resolve, to let be, to let go, is to play into the hands of those – particularly terrorists – who seek to destabilize the world. France will never resign itself, even if it's difficult, especially if it's difficult. And this is why France took the initiative to contribute to searching for a solution to the Israeli-Palestinian conflict. Certainly, no one can impose a solution upon the parties.
